

BRINGING THE SOUND OF HEALTHCARE HOME

For the first time in our history, Coro Health is stepping into the most sacred place of all... the home. We are bringing the Sound of Healthcare directly into the place where memories live, families gather, and healing feels most comforting. We are fulfilling our promise to truly meet people where they are.

Today, we are beyond honored and honestly emotional to share that Coro Health has officially expanded into Home Health, bringing therapeutic music, multi-faith spiritual care, and meaningful engagement directly into the homes of individuals aging in place.

Over the last year, we worked to ensure we could provide our services to support one of life's hardest and most meaningful transitions: moving from independence into needing care at home. Through MusicFirst, FaithFirst, and EnrichFirst, we are now supporting real moments of real life at home by bringing joy and familiarity into an ordinary afternoon, calming anxiety during recovery, deepening connections during visits, or helping individuals find peace during end-of-life care.

The Sound of Healthcare was never meant to live in just one place. Now, it lives where people live. Right where healing, hope, and humanity belong....at HOME.

THE CORO CHRONICLES
PODCAST

The future of aging at home isn't about more tech it's about less friction, more connection, and real peace of mind.

In our newest Coro Chronicles, Jim Conti (Vantiva) shares how the most powerful care tools are the ones people don't even notice starting with the most trusted screen in the home: The TV.

Imagine care that feels natural. Support that feels respectful. Technology that quietly strengthens connection between families, care teams, and the people they love. And as Coro Health expands therapeutic music, faith, and engagement into home health, this conversation hits at the heart of where care is going next.

If you care about the future of aging, caregiving, or human-centered technology you don't want to miss this one.
